

영어2 에세이: 미래 누군가 써주는 60대 나의 전기

미디어학과 201700000 박성범

He was born in 1998 in Seoul and He had a free childhood. His parents did not enroll him in private educational institute. So he could do what he wanted. However, he wanted more freer. He was always tied up with homework, college admission, grade, and worry about so many things. He was free when he was 25 years old summer. During the break from university, he stayed in the home all day and watched TV. Then, one idea that his decision when he was a freshman was flashed into his mind.

He joined in the events, communities, and lectures about IT he could find. Several months later, he joined a 'Hackathon' with his friend. They developed a web service for three days without sleep. Finally, their service won a gold award. The service was platform for political discussion. They refine the service with a prize and mentoring program. Fortunately, they were invested by venture investor in the developer conference. They leased office and hired designers. The number of service users dramatically increased, and highly regarded in IT industry. Despite their company was grew up, it couldn't make a profit. They added more features, but the service became too heavy. After two years, they closed down the business.

He entered the employment market in a flurry. He wrote several resume, and had a job interview. He worked well in the 'N Inc.' as a FE developer. He was selected by TF often. He felt proud himself. A few years later, He experienced a feeling of powerlessness. He lost him in the company. He was just a part of the huge organization. Eventually, He quit his job.

After quit, He started his company with some co-workers. He wanted to make social value. He made his failure a steppingstone to success. He's been working for his company until now.

The epitaph: I become free.
